... Captive and Wild

Wildlife Photographer Christian Sperka will talk about animal photography and conservation in the wild and in captivity.

He will also share a few of the stories from "special moments" during his work in Southern Africa over the last ten years.

When/where: Tuesday, February, 7 2012 – 6:30 p.m. at the UT Martin Campus Library

Christian Sperka is a wildlife photographer based in Nashville, Tennessee. Over the last 10 years, Christian has traveled the world photographing animals in wild game reserves of South Africa and Namibia, the jungles of Costa Rica, as well as zoos in Switzerland and across the United States. His work has been featured in wildlife magazines, books and promotional campaigns for Nashville Zoo, Cincinnati Zoo and Zurich Zoo in Switzerland. Christian is also a qualified South African field guide. Every year he leads a few photographic safaris to Southern Africa.

Now residing in Nashville, Christian has partnered with Nashville Zoo to offer photography classes for all skill levels. In January 2011 he became the official Nashville Zoo photographer. In June 2010, Christian opened his Animal Art Photography gallery and studio at the Arcade in Nashville. His photographs are also available through his online store.
